Nixon Makes Mission Bay World Famous

By CASEY CRAWFORD
Sentinel Staff Reporter

MISSION BAY, SAN DIEGO — That's the dateline which will be flashed around the world through the news media covering Republican Presidential Candidate Richard M. Nixon's 10 days here at the Bahia Hotel with his running mate, Gov. Spiro Agnew of Maryland, for campaign strategy planning and rest.

Making Mission Bay a by-word across the nation is almost as important to local Republicans as having the presidential and vice presidential candidates, their families, staff, international news media and national Republican dignitaries here, noted a local Republican. And of prime important to local Democrats, he cracked.

The Bahia Hotel has been a hub of activity for the last three weeks. At that time owner Bill Evans was asked by Nixon's communications chief, Herb Klein, to hold about 200 rooms in the event that Nixon became the nominee.

Evans, who says "I'm thrilled to death with the whole thing," immediately put the gears in motion by closing off reservations for that time. Albert Harutunian, local coordinator, who was in on that meeting, said "Bill Evans took a big chance to publicize Mission Bay.

"At a time when the Bahia is 110 per cent full, he really gambled on losing a lot of money. Besides that, he took on a tremendously expensive task of renovating and redecorating a whole building for a Presidential Suite," he said.

Evans explained, however, that had Governor Reagan won the nomination the Bahia would still have been the planning ground. "Sometimes you have to take big chances or you'll never get anywhere," he said. (No one asked what would have happened if Governor Rockefeller had won.)

Welcoming the Nixon-Agnew entourage of 170 people to the Bahia, and the first thing they saw, is a special Nixon flag made by "Crutch" Crutchfield, Bahia grounds superintendent. The flag, nine by 12 feet, is white with a blue elephant. A red saddle blanket is emblazoned with the initals RN.

The elephant design was drawn by Marilyn Briggs, secretary to Evans. Sailing flags also in front spell out "Welcome Nixon" in international code.

RN spells the magic initials around the Bahia and you hear it on everyone's lips.

Working around the clock for the past week, technicians installed 15 teletypes, 30 typewriters, several Xerox machines and 35 additional telephones. In the Presidential Suite a complete separate switchboard with 35 telephones has been installed for complete privacy and safety.

Building 400, with 70 rooms, is the new Presidential Suite, and where the Nixon-Agnew entourage are staying. Lower surrounding apartments have been taken over by Secret Service agents.

Doors were cut to connect rooms for better surveillance and the beach and swimming area are completely private. (Nixon reportedly loves ocean swimming.) All meals are being served in the building by waiters who have undergone complete security checking. Even the chefs have been cleared.

'Guadalajara' Praises Sung By Two Girls

Two Peninsula high school girls are singing the praises of Guadalajara, Mexico, these days in a manner befitting the most exuberant chamber of commerce official.

Carol Titlow and Linda Brower, both 16, have just returned home after attending summer school for five weeks at the University of Guadalajara. And they exhaust their vocabularies in describing the robust friendliness of the Mexican people and the widespread beauty of Guadalajara.

Carol is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Titlow, of 3782 Milan St., and Linda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Brower, of 3612 Liggett St. Carol's father is president of the Ocean Beach Town Council.

They went to Guadalajara to study under a summer school extension program sponsored by the Mexican university and the University of San Francisco.

Carol took courses in grammar and history and Linda attended classes in upper division Spanish conversation and grammar.

Miss Titlow has had four years of instruction in Spanish and Miss Brower had studied the language for five years. This background enabled them to communicate freely, and, as a result of their trip, both now speak Spanish more fluently.

During their stay they were guests of a Mexican family of five and they were particularly gratified because the family had the services of two maids.

"We just loved it," said Carol. "The maids did our hair, washed and ironed our clothes and made our beds. And they taught us how to make tortillas and other Mexican food."

The girls agreed that the most impressive aspect of their trip was the modern beauty of Guadalajara's buildings and elite residential sections. They cited the prevalence of spacious parks and the presence of fountains throughout the city.

Carol and Linda also discovered that Mexican parents greatly differ from American parents in their outlook on dating.

"Mexican girls of our age are allowed to go out only if a chaperone goes along," Carol explained. "As a result, American girls are very popular down there because they can go out when they want to. Some of the Mexican girls resent this."

Linda and Carol will be seniors at Point Loma High School next semester. Upon graduation, Linda plans to attend the University of California at San Diego, while Carol plans to go to the University of California at Santa Cruz.

And both of them plan to visit Mexico again at the earliest opportunity.

New Members

Claude Calvert, chairman of the Peninsula Chamber of Commerce, announces the affiliation of two new members. Latest additions to the roster are James Dion, owner of Ocean Beach Auto Repair, Inc., 1955 Bacon St., and Paul Holz, owner of the Point Loma Camera Shop, 1306 Rosecrans St.

ON A PORTABLE CANOPIED STAGE

Dancer Dreams Of Water Ballet On Bay

Not water ballet, but ballet on the bay is a dream of an enthusiastic new resident of Pacific Beach.

This particular newcomer is not a stranger to fans of "Starlight Opera" and the ballet. Her name is Maxine Mahon and she was principal dancer with the San Diego Ballet Co. and last year a member of the National Ballet Co. in Washington, D.C.

She and her husband, Robert, have a dream of having a permanent principal ballet company on the West Coast, home-based in San Diego, naturally! And they can see, someday, a portable canopied stage on Mission Bay for a summer dance festival with the audience seated on shore.

They dream so well that this year they formed The California Ballet Company with Robert as organizer and general manager, bringing top international stars here from the Capitol for a Summer season. While in Washington they talked so much about San Diego and its cultural atmosphere that they also persuaded one of the National Ballet's principal dancers, Steven Grebel, to be the artistic director.

Grebel was also principal dancer with the Bolshoi Ballet and the Belgrade National Ballet. Other top international stars attracted here this Summer, for the first time in San Diego, include: Alida Belair, principal dancer with National Ballet Co. from Australia; Ivan Dragadze, principal dancer of the London Dance Theatre; Yvonne Meyer, principal dancer of London Festival Ballet, Edinborough Festival Ballet and the National Ballet Co.; Judith Reese, guest artist and soloist with National Ballet; Alexei Yudenich, European guest artist and principal dancer with The Pennsylvania Ballet Company; Jean-Paul Comelin, principal dancer with the Paris Opera Ballet and London Festival Ballet; David Panaieff, principal dancer with the Oukhtomsky Ballet Co.; Barbara Sandonato, soloist and guest star, principal dancer with Pennsylvania Ballet Co.; and Frederic Franklin, well-known star of original Monte Carlo Ballet Russe.

And that's how it began, on short notice and short of cash, but long on artistic ability.

This Tuesday through Thursday will end a successful season at the "Open Air Theatre" located at San Diego State College. Tuesday, Aug. 20, they will present five ballets at the Civic Theatre.

But, withstanding glowing critical reviews and high cultural interest, The California Ballet Company must have financial backing from patrons of the ballet in order to prepare for a 1969 season. This may not be Broadway, but they do need an "angel"!

As a ballet dancer, Maxine carries on a family tradition. Not only that, but she can also claim to be a real San Diegan with her great-grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. William Cummings, coming by covered wagon from Colorado 75 years ago to help settle the area.

Dr. Cummings became one of the first surgeons at the old St. George Hospital. Their daughter, Ione, Maxine's grandmother, was then six months old. She was not a dancer, but as young ladies were taught in those days, played the violin and studied elocution.

The family heavily supported the dance, however, and Maxine's mother, Mrs. Johnny Jennings, was the first ballet dancer to come out of San Diego. She starred at Hotel Del Coronado during its heyday and performed for Lindbergh at a celebration held here for him on his return flight.

An accident stopped her budding career so she opened the Flora Downs Dance Studios in La Mesa and Chula Vista where the families had all settled. She taught her little daughter until Maxine was ready for classical ballet, going into the well-known Marguerite Ellicott Studio.

Designs Costumes

Maxine is not just one of the principal stars in their company, but designs and sews all the costumes, and is "just general girl Friday," she says.

Living at 3982 Ingraham St., the Mahons have become completely intrigued with Mission Bay. Robert, who also owns two car washes and a booking agency, grew up in Ocean Beach. He graduated from Point Loma High and SD State.

A far cry from ballet and formation of a major company is the way they met, courted and married. Maxine, who had torn a ligament and unable to dance was working as a probation officer and Robert was an investigative officer.

From there into ballet again, business, and making their dreams come true. Robert, a charter member of OMBAC (Old Mission Beach Athletic Club) has already become a member of the Beaches Committee, citizens group under the city Park and Recreation Committee.

They've had international stars staying with them, all enjoying beach life and getting more and more sold on San Diego. Culture has come to San Diego with a capital "D" for the dance!

Unleashed Dogs

Complaint Increase Reported

The Peninsula Chamber of Commerce is receiving an increasing number of complaints about unleashed dogs roaming the beach areas in Ocean Beach, Ramona Peterson, executive secretary reported this week.

"We have asked the police department for direction in enforcing this law and, at its suggestion, will bring pressure to bear on persons who violate this law," Mrs. Peterson said.

"We are urging all dog owners to accept their responsibility for control of their pets on our public beaches. We also urge persons who see a loose dog to call the city pound and report the violation."

The city code regulating animals on the beaches reads, in part: "It shall be unlawful for any person to bring, leave, turn loose or allow to go, any animal in or upon any beach area in the City of San Diego, provided that this section shall not apply to dogs when fastened or led by a chain or line not more than eight feet in length of suitable strength."

Softball Team Cops District With Six Wins

The third and fourth grade softball team of the Ocean Beach Recreation Center chalked up six straight victories to win the Bay District championship and qualify for city-wide playoffs scheduled the last week of this month.

Coached by Mike Murphy, junior recreation leader, the Center Club took its opener from Loma Portal, 5-3, then defeated Dewey, 2-0; Cabrillo, 3-0; Silver Gate, 24-0; Sunset View, 16-7, and Barnard, 16-0.

125 Entries Expected For Ensenada Race

The fifth annual invitational San Diego-Ensenada International Yacht Race will be held Sept. 28-29 under auspices of the Southwestern Yacht Club of San Diego and the Club de Yates de Ensenada.

Commodore Buford Saul of S.Y.C. and Ensenada's commodore, Bill Boisson, are planning the event with Tom Coyne, general race committee chairman. Members of the committee include Hamilton Stone, Louis Peelyon and Bob Belden.

More than 125 entries are expected, including several winners from last year. The race will be open to the ocean racing fleet, San Diego handicap fleet and the multi-hulled fleet.

Circus Tickets Given Away

Ocean Beach merchants will give 200 free tickets away to the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus' opening night performance on Wednesday, Aug. 21.

Entry coupons and contest information will be available at stores located in the Ocean Beach shopping area. Thursday's Peninsula News will give full details in a special section on a drawing to be held beginning at noon on Saturday, Aug. 17.

Stores will hold their own drawings and tickets will be given in groups of five so that the entire family might attend.

Huge Art Mart On Mission Bay Closes Today

Today ends the huge art show being displayed at the Marina on East Vacation Isle in Mission Bay Park.

The third annual AquaFair Art Mart, sponsored by the Pacific Beach Art Guild and Pacific Beach Town Council, is showing paintings and crafts by artisans from all over San Diego County. Opening at 9:30 this morning, the show will close at 4:30 p.m.

Balloting for favorite painting will be closed today and award-winning ribbons presented by Miss Pacific Beach, Susan Crothamel, who was the first runner-up. This year the public is doing the judging by voting on their favorite pictures.

The first three winners will be presented with beautiful frames. All work exhibited is for sale by the artists themselves.

Persons interested in owning their own "original," are urged to attend this annual Art Mart which is open to the public free of charge.

Woman Film Editor Began Career In'47

"It's my job to put scenes together to tell a good story," Olive Thompson says in explaining her work as a film editor at Naval Electronics Laboratory Center, San Diego.

"You think about motion and cut the scenes to carry the story smoothly without disturbing the viewers with irrelevant information," she continues.

Mrs. Thompson, who helped edit her first film for NELC in 1947, has seen technical films reporting develop from a method of conveying information to a way of reporting used extensively in government and industry.

"At the time we started doing technical film reports at NELC there was a Naval Photographic Center in Washington, D.C., but the field activities didn't have motion pictures. To my knowledge, the first Navy technical film reports came from NELC," Mrs. Thompson said.

No stranger to the world of sights, sounds and scenes, Mrs. Thompson was a script girl for Samuel Goldwyn before coming to San Diego. She started at the Goldwyn Studios in the story department where magazines and books were researched for their potential as movies.

"I felt lucky to get a job on the lot at all. I started as a clerk, but at least I was there.

Mrs. Thompson holds a bachelor's degree in education from San Diego State College. In addition to both elementary and junior high school teaching credentials, she has a special secondary credential for speech arts.

She furthered her education at University of Southern California where she was a member of the first class in that school's cinematography program. Olive and her husband, Carroll Thompson, reside at 630 Gage Dr., Pacific Beach.

Center Offers SeaWorld Trip

A trip to Sea World for elementary school children will be sponsored by the Ocean Beach Recreation Center Friday at 12:30 p.m.

Christine Pittman, assistant Center director, said parents volunteers are needed for the event. The cost will be 80 cents.

Miss Pittman also announced that the Center will hold a checkers tournament Friday at 10 a.m., with competition slated in elementary and junior high school divisions. Trophies will be awarded in both brackets.

Council Rejects Rezone Request For Apartment

A request to rezone seven lots in the 4700 block of Pescadero Avenue, permitting construction of a 24-unit apartment house, was unanimously rejected by the City Council Thursday.

More than 130 property owners in the area signed a petition against the proposal, and the Council also heard objections from Ned Titlow, president of the Ocean Beach Town Council.

Titlow said the request would create spot zoning and was in conflict with the Peninsula Community Plan.

"We feel there is enough R-4 ground available in the area for apartment development," Titlow said.

Nixon Gives Bay Fame

Nixon Campaign advance men Bill Kodas and Bob Passwater spent all week surveying the area and planning methods of security. There's no lack of security as 50 secret servicemen (Federal and state) are surrounding both candidates and their families at all times.

Fifty members of the press, representing wire services and newspapers throughout the nation, are billeted at both The Bahia and The Catamaran Hotels with two press rooms set up at the Bahia.

One, the Del Mar Room, is for smaller press conferences and is the "Bull-pen," equipped with typewriters and teletypes. Main press conferences will be held in part of the Bay Room, a huge ballroom which can be separated by a sound proof wall.

Nixon, who's known for his fondness for Mexican food, has certainly come to the best place to get it, said Harutunian. Bill Evans, however, said Mexican food hadn't been planned on any of the menus.

"He's a Californian and he's starting his campaign here in California," said Harutunian. "The only difference is, this time, Nixon told me on the telephone, 'We're going to win'!"

Not withstanding the great punch of having Republican dignitaries and governors coming and going by the droves, the entertaining and special events that only a major political campaign can generate; residents, campaign workers and employees have all added that one great big enthusiasm. And that is, "It's wonderful! Mission Bay and San Diego will really be put on the map and we'll be known all over the world."

States a Bahia secretary "San Diego will show the country a clean city with reasonable people. We aren't anticipating any trouble at all."

Convicted Man Indicted For 3 More Robberies

The San Diego grand jury has indicted a Pacific Beach man in connection with three more bank robberies in the last three years.

He is Paul Clifford English, 35, who last March was convicted and sentenced to 10 years in prison for the robbery of the Bank of America branch at 5360 Balboa Ave. of $17,205.

English pleaded guilty to the charge, but he is now charged with the robbery of the Bank of America branch on Newport Avenue in May of 1965; the June, 1966 robbery of the Bank of America branch on 30th Street, and the June, 1967 robbery of the Bank of America branch on Rosecrans Street.

English, who lived at 2851 Grandview St., was also charged with arson from a cell fire in which an inmate suffered serious burns while he was awaiting transfer to a federal prison to start his 10-year sentence.

Racism Will Be Explained By Students

A group of San Diego State College students, who will be callin gon residents of North Clairemont today, would like to have a warm "Welcome!"

They are members of "Americans Against Racism," formed following the assassination of Martin Luther King to acquaint people of the general problems of racism, and to get signatures on post cards to be sent to Sen. Jack Schrade.

The post card says, "I urge you to use all your political and personal powers to help eliminate racism in our society." One of the students, Mrs. Ray Campbell of 3631 Cowley Way, say, "This is a white problem and we jolly well better face it."

She said that students so far have received enthusiastic response. "Most people are anxious to help," Mrs. Campbell stated. "But they don't realize the problem nor do they know what to do.

"Unfortunately, people against racism are the silent people while fanatical bigots make a lot of noise," she stated.

"Americans Against Racism" hope to send 400 cards from Clairemont alone to Sen. Schrade in the hope that he will do something about this major problem of our society. So far, Mrs. Campbell reported, Schrade has not acknowledged the cards or given them any response.

Students are also offering pins, white with red and blue, with "One American Against Racism" printed on them, for a free donation. "This is our way of saying that something should be done," Mrs. Campbell said.

From engineering to missionary work, Ronald G. Taylor, former Deacon and Superintendent of Sunday School of the First Baptist Church of Clairemont goes to the Congo this next week.

Over the past year Ronald and his wife Norma have been in intensified training for this work. His wife felt the same call.

As a send off the church took a love offering on July 28 and sent the offering of $82 to them last week. In turn the church has designated $2,000 of a $40,000 budget to go toward their salary during this next year.

In the Congo Ronald will be teaching physics and mathematics at a Mission School. Both Ron and Norma will be helping in the many duties of missionary work. The Taylors have three children ages 9, 7, 3. The Taylors were residents of August Street in Clairemont.

Cancer Victims Lose Lives, $$ To Med Quacks

Medical quackery in the United States is a billion dollar business according to the San Diego Branch of the American Cancer Society.

Most people tend to underestimate the significance of medical quackery because so much of it seems so obviously absurd. Nevertheless, quacks are fleecing innocent victims in the United States of an estimated billion dollars a year.

More important, they are causing the needless loss of lives.

The society points out that time lost on questionable remedies by patients anxious to avoid surgery or radiation may permit a cancer to spread until the patient no longer has a chance for cure.

Time is of the essence in treating cancer and the cost of quackery must be figured not only in dollars but in length of life.

If you question a treatment call your local Branch of the American Cancer Society for information on any cancer treatment.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By DOCTOR JOHN J. FLYNN
Doctor of Chiropractic

Q—"I'm 27 and a private secretary. I've lost feeling in the little finger of my right hand from an auto accident, and consequently I've lost the touch on the letter 'P' on my typewriter. The finger doesn't hurt or anything, but it's a nuisance. Could this be nerve blockage?"

ANSWER —Indeed it can. Loss of feeling is one of the first symptoms of a serious nerve impingement on the spinal column. Experience has shown that if this loss of feeling is due to a spinal disorder, it should readily respond to chiropractic care.

Free X-Rays

Q—"Why do chiropractors use X-rays and why don't you charge for them?"

ANSWER — X-rays or spinograph as they're often called, are used to pinpoint with precise accuracy a spinal misalignment that often is the primary cause of a patient's trouble. My office provides free X-rays and examinations to encourage you to visit the office so that your condition can be properly analyzed and a decision made if the chiropractic method of healing can help. Just call for an appointment.

Chiropractic Definition

Q—"Where does the word chiropractic come from and what does it mean?"

ANSWER—Chiropractic is actually taken from two words in the Greek language — cheir (hand) and proxis (practice). The word refers to the hand practice or hand correction of misalignments in the spinal column that cause serious health problems.

Swollen Ankles

Q—"I'm a pants presser in a factory, but I haven't worked for six months because of swollen ankles. It's real serious. I don't seem to have the strength to stand. I've seen two doctors, but a friend told me to see a chiropractor. Can you help?"

ANSWER — This is not an uncommon problem and in many cases has nothing to do with one's occupation. This condition is often the direct result of an interruption in the nerves in the lower spinal column that control body functions. These normal nerve transmissions are often blocked, causing painful swelling and loss of strength in lower legs and ankles. An X-ray would show conclusively if this is the trouble.

Sciatica Sufferer

Q — "I'm a route man and I'm constantly in and out of my truck making bundle deliveries. I think I sprained my back 'cause I've got a dull ache at the base of my spine. The boss says it's sciatica and that I should see a Chiropractor. Can you tell?"

ANSWER — Your boss may be right. The sciatic nerve is very vulnerable to irritation, especially to strains caused by lifting and twisting. A misaligned vertebrae in the lumbar region of the spine can interrupt the proper carrying ability of this great nerve causing painful sciatica. You should contact a Chiropractor for an adjustment to restore the vertebrae to its proper position.

Handwriting Analysis

By Appointment

Dear Mrs. Whiting,

Forgive me for complaining, but you talk about left and right in handwriting analysis but I know you aren't talking about writing left handed or right handed. What do you mean?

Well, Kay, I may mean any one of several things. Obviously handwriting is merely making marks which go in one direction or another, up or down, right or left. The trick for graphologist is to discover how the writer was feeling as he made the stroke.

Just for fun, try this experiment: Write, "I'm running away" just as fast and as large as you can. Notice how you feel as you write it. Then take a big breath, settle down a minute, and write the same thing in very small, deliberate writing.

The fast, large writing probably sprawled letters with a strong right slant. It is as if you were eating up the page, reaching out toward the future, so to speak. You probably felt somewhat stimulated, excited and anticipatory as you wrote.

But the small writing requires more concentration.

I am running

It probably took more time to write, especially if you are used to writing large. But small writing is usually more compressed, the letters are closer together. Instead of feeling exhilerated at the prospect of running away, there was probably a feeling of self-pity. Someone was picking on you to make you write so small, so the writing would have some indication of self involvement.

Check the ending of each word. Is the ending tails feathered out toward the right . . . as it undoubtedly was in the large sample? Or do they, as I suspect, have tiny hooks on the endings as if the stroke actually returned slightly to the left before the pen left the page.

The graphologist uses spaces in analysis as well as strokes. And the direction of stroke in space tell a great deal. Left tending strokes indicate a preoccupation with self. The rest of the writing will show whether the preoccupation is caused by pure selfishness, self indulgence on a physical level . . . or whether the writer might need to give thought to self . . . as in the case of a person with a chronic illness . . . or the actress whose self involvement means her career.

Self involved? Or outgoing? To learn the secrets your handwriting reveals, send at least three lines of writing and your signature to Eldene Whiting, P. O. Box 9234, San Diego, Calif. 92109. Please include a stamped. self addressed envelope and $2 for a word check list and a full page of individual analysis. Each letter is considered individually and is answered promptly, personally and in confidence.

Financial Report

By TOM MARTIN

Looking at the economy in general it is clear that several special factors gave business a lift in the first half of the year. Sales and earnings were buoyed by the catching up in auto sales after the 1967 strike, by the accumulation of steel inventories in anticipation of a strike and by various income-boosting developments-increases in Social Security benefits, minimum wages and pay for federal employees.

In the second half, however, the situation is likely to be very different. Not only will most of these stimulants have played themselves out, new restraints will be in effect. The income tax surcharge, cutbacks in federal spending and continuing credit restrictions will serve to slow the inflationary spiral. But these factors will also slow down the business advance.

What it all adds up to is a mildly disappointing earnings picture for the next six months. Some stocks, then, inevitably will sell off. But even with a moderate easing in business and earnings, quite a few issues will rise in reponse to their own attractive fundamentals. While selecting stocks may become more chancy, rewards are still in store for the astute investor. One stock that may outperform the market is Teledyne.

TELEDYNE'S bent for acquisition has by no means run its course, even though the stock is down almost 25% from its 1968 high. If it chose today to stop collecting other corporations, its prospects would still be impressive. The reason: Teledyne is concentrating on technologies with significant long-range potential. These technologies can be classified broadly as electronics and control systems (which account for about half of Teledyne's business); specialty metals, now in demand for manned aircraft and nuclear power uses; and geophysics and oceanography.

About 50% of Teledyne's work is done under government contract, and the other backlog is at a record high. One of the more important contracts (a joint Army-Navy program) is for an integrated helicopter flight-control system, which will be in part adaptable for use in Lockheed's AH-56A fire-support helicopter. Work on these contracts is expected to generate a volume of about $25 million in fiscal 1968, and could expand to $100 million within a few years.

Teledyne's total volume is expected to be in the range of $750 million for the fiscal year ending October 31. This would represent a spectacular rise from the $4.5 million that the company reported for the 1961 fiscal year. Operating profit margins have improved greatly since then, with only one minor setback in 1965. As a result, per-share earnings have soared despite a more than eightfold increase in the number of shares outstanding.

Recall Reagan Drive Launches Extra Period

The Recall Reagan Committee announces the launching of Phase II of the recall drive in San Diego.

Ed Koupal, state chairman of the drive, joined with Mrs. Evelyn Emerson, San Diego County chairman, in declaring that they hoped to obtain 25,000 additional signatures in the County during the 60-day supplementary period which began August 1.

Koupal expressed optimism in the light of the fact that most of the 11,000 signatures turned in by San Diego on July 31 were obtained in the last month. The 60-day supplementary period is clearly provided for by the State Constitution.

Koupal announced that he expected the statewide total from July 31 to be about 600,000 signatures. He said that the grass-roots organization of the recall has made communications very difficult and he felt that earlier overestimates were largely due to this problem. He said he expected about 450,000 signatures to be finally verified and that therefore the group had achieved about 60 percent its ultimate goal.

Mrs. Emerson stated that the San Diego County Committee, numbering more than 50 citizen volunteers, has begun circulating petitions for Phase II and will continue until late September.

McKinnon's ODYSSEY

Ed's Note: Clinton D. McKinnon and his wife Lucille have recently returned from a journalistic study mission in the USSR. Here is one of a series of their findings.

There are many interesting things in Russia, but food is not one of them.

It's on the plain, though substantial side. Somehow or other, the men do not reflect the starchy diet but most of the women do.

Compared to our willowy American girls, most Russian women are built like oaks. They are thick around the waist, muscular and vigorous. They do not take the trouble to remove the hairs from their arms and legs, and few use cosmetics.

They like fried potatoes, brown bread, and chocolate bars—and show it. Somehow, it doesn't affect the men the same way. A young fat Russian man is most unusual.

But the men have trouble with their vodka. They take it straight and in a single gulp. This way, a bottle doesn't last very long, and it hits the drinker like a sledge hammer.

The women, who are circumspect in this regard, explain that their men do not drink more than the Americans. They simply don't eat when they drink like the Americans do, and thus the results are more marked.

The Soviet government is showing concern for heavy drinking, and has taken several steps to cool it. Vodka is no longer cheap for the Russian. Over the counter a fifth costs 4.85 rubles (about $5.30). Yet a foreigner can purchase the same bottle at an airport or hotel for $1.50 in his own currency.

Police now have the power to arrest a drunk and fine him on the spot. Or if a policeman catches a driver with alcohol on his breath, he is subject to arrest and fine.

There're not fooling around and it's plain to see that this dictatorship of the proletariat does not coddle the culprit.

* * *

The average Russian spends most of his income on food. According to official figures, his once heavily laden starch diet is giving way to more protein. He eats 50% more meat now than he did 15 years ago, and the government reports that the average Russian is eating 124 eggs a year, as compared to only 60 in 1950. At 16 cents an egg, the chicken farmers should be doing very well, except most of the egg production is owned by the government.

When spring and early summer come to Russia, the people burst out like the trees and flowers.

A shipment of fresh tomatoes or yellow cherries from Bulgaria will come to Moscow and vendors will open a stand on a busy street and buyers will queue up in long lines to buy them.

I fell in line one evening and for one ruble ($1.11) I received five tomatoes, about the size of walnuts. From what I could reckon, those tomatoes were selling for about $2.50 a pound, and it amazes me that families who earn less than 200 rubles a month could afford a luxury like this.

* * *

The Russians also have a passion for flowers and it is not unusual to see both men and women carrying home a bouquet of cut flowers. And in many homes you see potted plants or large flower boxes. The long, cold winters make those 90 days of summer extremely pleasant.

The Soviet government prides itself on equal rights for women. Most of them work and there seems to be no discrimination as to what jobs they may handle. Over one-fourth of the Supreme Soviet (the equivalent of our Congress) are women, and 70 percent of the nation's medical doctors are female. More than that, I saw women baggage handlers at the airport in Tashkent, blacktop layers in Irkutsk, and women driving spikes with sledge hammers in the railroad yards at Nakhodka.

It's only when you get down in the deep south of the Soviet Union, where the Oriental influence is still in evidence that the attitude toward women change. In Samarkand, for instance, the wife follows at a respectful distance and takes orders with silent obedience.

* * *

Russia is such a vast land, it varies greatly from one area to another.

But there are certain aspects that remain the same all over.

For one thing, public transit is cheap, frequent and packed. In most places, bus rides cost 3 cents. The Moscow subway is 5 cents, runs fast and the underground stations and cars are spotless—a great contrast to the New York system. A litterbug is fined on the spot, and, as a result, he is non-existent.

Department stores—owned by the government—are packed . . . and they run no advertising, have no dollar days, and sell for cash only. The prices are high. A white shirt sells from $10 to $12, shoes range from $16 up, and a drab man's suit that would sell for less than $50 in the U.S. is priced at $65 to $85.

The reason for the brisk business is that in Russia today there is more money in circulation than there is merchandise to buy.

Consequently, savings banks do a good business. They pay the depositor 2% interest and loan money for eight percent, the Intourist guide tells me.

Installment buying is allowed on items like television sets, furniture and home appliances. The terms are 25% down and the balance in 12 months.

* * *

The strangest thing about Russia, however, is the fact that they are able to shoot the moon and can't fix a leaky faucet. Or, at least, in every hotel we visited, the faucets leaked without exception.

And if you are planning a visit to the Soviet Union in the near future, be sure and carry along a roll of toilet paper. In this land of vast timber and paper products, toilet paper is dealt out with utmost frugality. Usually brown in color, it is harsher than pages from a Sears catalogue that used to rest in the Chick Sales comfort stations.

It took us a week to figure out why the paper was never replaced, but one day someone told us how to get replacements.

In each bathroom is a round receptacle with a lid for waste. You are expected to place your used toilet paper in this receptacle, not down the drain, we were told. No paper in the receptacle, no new paper next morning in the box.

I can't swear that this is the answer, but after we started the practice, we certainly found out that toilet paper became less scarce.

Who runs the Soviet Union and what do they think of Red China. In next Thursday's Sentinel.

Columbia Provides Retirement Paradise

By DON MACLEAN

WASHINGTON — While we have a surplus of government types who specialize in planning, we have no over-all agency which makes plans for everybody. In Colombia, South America, where I recently spent a few days, they do; it's called the National Planning Department.

The chief planner for the whole country is Edgar Guiterrez and we chatted with him at an ancient fort (recently converted into a private club). Our first question for him, of course, was, "Well, what are your plans?"

MACLEAN

No, no," Sr. Guiterrez said in perfect English, "that's not the way it works. You tell me your plans and I will tell you how the government will cooperate in order to help your business and make you rich."

It's hard not to like a government official who talks like that. The United States could use a few.

"Would you like to start a business in Colombia?" he said. "Fine. Labor is so cheap, it is ridiculous. We have no rules saying you must have a Colombia citizen as partner or anything like that. There is a limit to how much of an existing Colombian corporation you may buy, but you may start a brand-new corporation and own as much of it as you like."

We mentioned taxes and he said foreign-owned companies need not pay any taxes for 10 years. (Colombia ought to change its name to "Paradise.")

"Maybe you'd like to build a hotel in Cartagena, right beside the one you're living in now," he said. "Ocean-front land might cost you as much as $2 per square foot. Building costs are low—there are no heating or insulation problems — it's always warm here. We need hotels; I urge you to build one."

We said we'd leave that for somebody else.

"Hmmm," he said. "Then maybe you'd like to retire in Colombia. You know, there are no income taxes here unless your money is earned in this country. If you're retired, you can receive your checks from the U.S. every month and live here tax-free. Look over there, see that tall building? It's a condominium, full of retired U.S. citizens.

"They bought two-bedroom, air-conditioned apartments for only $10,000 in U.S. money. Why, your poorest citizens — school teachers and policemen—could retire here and live like royalty."

We told him we weren't thinking of retiring for at least another 30 years.

"That's too bad," he said. "By then my planning will have developed the country and you won't be able to afford it."

Why Do People Spend Money?

The old adage about a fool and his money may be true sometimes, but in the long run it's difficult to get Mr. Average Consumer to spend his hard-earned cash without good reason. The direct Mail Advertising Association has come up with this logical list of the major reasons people spend money: 1) To make more money; 2) To save money; 3) To save time; 4) To avoid effort; 5) For comfort; 6) For cleanliness; 7) For health; 8) To escape physical pain; 9) For praise; 10) To be popular; 11) To attract the opposite sex; 12) To conserve possessions; 13) For enjoyment; 14) To gratify curiosity; 15) To protect family; 16) To be in style; 17) For beautiful possessions; 18) To satisfy appetite; 19) to emulate others; 20) For safety in buying; 21) To be individual; 22) To protect reputation; 23) To take advantage of opportunities; 24) To avoid trouble.

Regardless of the quality of the product or service, the above factors will always exert some kind of influence.

Men are getting trimmer, according to Changing Times. Us fellows today are less pear-shaped than our fathers and grandfathers. So say designers of men's clothes. They say that in 1917 a man who wore a size 40 suit generally had about a 36-inch waist. In 1947 most size 40's were about 35 inches around the middle, but now they're a sleek 33 or 34.

Conservative View

Elephants Remember

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

For the past several months, former Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama has been roaming through the meadows of American frustration, making political hay by declaring that there isn't a "nickel's worth of difference" between the two major parties. The ex-excellency of Alabama isn't likely to abandon that line of attack, but he truly ought to look again.

KILPATRICK

There had been a considerable apprehension among conservative Republicans, before the convention went into session, that perhaps Wallace would be proved an excellent prophet.

Old elephants have long memories; party stalwarts uneasily recalled Richard Nixon's 11th-hour visitation with Nelson Rockefeller eight years ago. This year's platform committee was known to be under strong liberal pressures from the Rockefeller-Javits wing. It was noted that the liberal mayor of New York, John Lindsay, would introduce the liberal governor of Washington, keynoter, Dan Evans.

The past week's developments have done much to relieve the apprehension. Both the platform and the keynote address exude the old-time Republican religion.

* * *

In common with all political platforms, this year's Republican version is couched largely in phosphorescent generalities; they fairly glow in the dark. Gov. Evans' keynote speech was pitched to a level of lofty idealism not likely to be attained short of the new Jerusalem. Even so, a common theme was there.

Time after time, the platform puts emphasis upon fiscal responsibility. It speaks repeatedly of enlarging the opportunity of the individual and extending the range of human choice. Plugs for private enterprise appear on nearly every page.

The platform's long section on crime repudiates the crippled sociology of the new left: "We must re-establish the principle that men are accountable for what they do, that criminals are responsible for their crimes, that while youth's environment may help to explain the man's crime, that does not excuse that crime."

* * *

The section on Vietnam is woven of light-weight wool, capable of being worn in all seasons, but other pledges in foreign affairs have a muscular resoluteness. The promise of military aid to Israel, "including supersonic fighters," is unequivocal. Republicans don't intend to be world policemen, "but we will not condone aggression or so-called wars of national liberation."

Gov. Evans, from whom much had been feared, proved that much could be delivered. Like the platform, his keynote address dwelled upon free enterprise and individual opportunity. He bore down in the old tradition, upon the "help-yourself society" and denounced the "increasing dominance of the federal goverment."

It wasn't what you would call pure Goldwater, but it wasn't far from vintage Ike.

* * *

None of this is to suggest that the mood of this convention is to go back to McKinley or even to Mr. Coolidge. On the contrary, the platform daringly implies that the time has come to move in the direction of a shorter standard work week; electoral reform and 18-year-old voting are endorsed; space exploration wins an approving pat; a new trust fund approach is proposed for rapid development of air transportation. All this is far from arch reaction.

Meanwhile, the costly Rockefeller balloon continues to have trouble getting off the ground. The erosion of Nixon strength, such as it is, is almost entirely in the direction of Ronald Reagan.

The Party's emerging course is clearly to the right of center. If it continues in that direction for the next several days, lonesome George will wind up in November with nothing much to sell that he can truly call his own.

Harris Poll

Polls Favor Fortas

By LOUIS HARRIS

Despite criticism of the U.S. Supreme Court and some of its decisions, American public opinion favors Senate confirmation of the nomination of Abe Fortas as chief justice by nearly 2 to 1. A national cross section feels, by 45 to 25% that the appointment should be approved. However, by 58 to 35%, the public also gives the high court itself a negative rating.

The main findings based on a Harris Survey taken shortly before last week's Republican National Convention in support of the nomination of Justice Fortas was:

HARRIS

—By 69 to 14%, Americans believe that "President Johnson was right to promote a man from within the present court."

—By 62 to 25%, they agree that "if the President appoints a qualified man as chief justice, the Senate should confirm his choice."

—By 45 to 17%, they also say that Fortas "is an able justice," although 44% are uncertain on that question.

* * *

Undoubtedly the main reason for the public controversy surrounding the Fortas nomination stems from some of the decisions of the court in recent years. When presented with the statement that "the present court has made it harder to convict criminals and was wrong to ban prayers from schoolrooms," those interviewed agreed by 78 to 11%. Support for the more popular "one-man, one-vote" and school desegregation decisions was only 41 to 25% on the positive side.

Two specific charges made during the recent Senate hearings on the Fortas case received no better than minority support. By 44 to 22%, the public rejected the view that "Justice Fortas was wrong to sit in on White House strategy meetings." By a much closer 33 to 30%, it also refused to go along with the claim that "Chief Justice Earl Warren retired now in order to keep Richard Nixon from naming the next chief justice."

Support for the Fortas nomination breaks sharply along regional, educational and political lines. Backing for confirmation is highest in the East and West and lowest in the South. People who did not finish high school give only 39 to 22% backing, while the college-educated support the nomination 52 to 30%.

The heart of the opposition to confirming Fortas as chief justice can be found among people who voted for Barry Goldwater in 1964, who are 45 to 29% opposed, and among those who plan to vote for George Wallace, 44 to 30% opposed. Backers of Hubert Humphrey support confirmation 59 to 10%. Wallace voters give the U.S. Supreme Court an 86 to 10% negative rating, compared with a 55 to 37% positive rating among Humphrey voters.

A cross section of 1,346 people were asked:

"President Johnson has nominated Justice Abe Fortas to succeed Earl Warren as chief justice of the U. S. Supreme Court. From what you know or heard, do you feel the nomination of Justice Fortas should be confirmed by the U. S. Senate?"

'Sons Of Deschs To Fight ert Song' Need Full Stoma

By FRANK GETLEIN

WASHINGTON — Rationality in world affairs is not so commonplace that any slightest evidence of some can be ignored.

Let us all, therefore, hail Gamal Abdel Nasser, the latter-day Serpent of the Nile, for what is at least a severe attack of common sense and one that may possibly prove chronic or even turn into a constant condition.

The onset of the thinking disease, so dreaded among Arab leaders, was marked in Nasser by a Pan-Arabian broadcast in which the Commander of the Faithful told the faithful they must practice "patience in order to score victory in the end" over Israel. Clearly, the master strategist of Cairo is still planning on war against Israel, but he realizes now that his army wont be ready for the job until 1970.

That's the date he has given to his fearless ally in last year's six-day war, King Hussein of Jordan. Hussein has given the same message to his war-hawk officers, telling them the simple truth that the Jordanian army is incapable of fighting Israel and the country must begin working for a peaceful settlement. Aware of Nasser's dream of another few days of glory in 1970, Hussein has prudently sent his air force to Iraq.

With the war thus scheduled for 1970, the future of sober thinking in Pan-Arabia may seem dim, especially with Algeria going into the receiver of stolen goods business with airplane hijackers. But these things take time. There may be a progression toward reason in the camp musical, "Sons of Desert Song," that they all seem to be auditioning for.

The cry for patience is out of character with the record. It's negative. It's cooling. It's postponing. It also sets a precedent for further postponement. When the due date of 1970 rolls around, Nasser may well announce that the troops still aren't ready for another reverse invasion of Israel and give a new date—1975, perhaps.

The reason he might make that announcement is that the troops will most assuredly not be ready by that time. The reason they will not be ready is not for lack of Soviet arms, but the total lack of morale among Nasser's fellahin. It's okay to rush up and down the narrow streets of Cairo shouting "Holy War, Holy War." It's stimulating exercise and gives a feeling of identity with Saladin, Lawrence of Arabia, Glubb Pasha and other warlike Arabs.

But when it come to actually picking up a rifle and putting yourself in a position to get shot, most of the Arab legions would rather be back whooping it up on the dusty streets. Their officers, for their part, prefer doing their excellent imitations of British colonialist subalterns waiting for the sunset gin.

This is why "Sons of Desert Song" always closes in New Haven. The principal characters are superb, roaring and waving their arms and chewing the scenery. But the chorus has never learned to sing and dance.

Eventually, and the way things are going, quite possibly by 1970, it is going to dawn on Nasser why his armies are so diffident about fighting the hated Zionists, despite his many educational broadcasts on the subject.

The reason they have no stomach for fighting is that not nearly enough is going into their stomachs. They are as neglected and miserable and incompetently governed under Nasser's Arab Socialism as they were under British colonialism or Farouk's eroticism.

There is a vicious circle. The Sons of Desert Song do not devote their attention and energy to economic work because they are busy plotting the destruction of Zionism, which beats working any time.

But their conscript troops won't fight because they have no feeling of getting any benefits from Arab Socialism.

To break the circle, if Nasser and his apprentice gunman in Jordan laid off the military hashhish for a while, they might be able to get enough economic progress going to give the fellahin the feeling of getting something out of it all. Thus motivated, the fellahin might turn themselves into fighting men on the order of Zionists, who fight so well because they do feel they own their society and it works for them.

The switch in this hypothetical evolution comes at the end. Once having savored the joys and rewards of honest work, Nasser and Hussein will have too much to lose to risk war with a fighting Israel

There will be Middle East peace at last and Nasser can send his air force to Algeria, which has this thing about other people's airplanes

UCSD Gets Replica Of 1st Encyclopedia

The University of California at San Diego's Library recently received an exact replica of an original set of encyclopedias printed in 1768 in which an editor devoted an inch to "Callifornia," thought to be either an island or a peninsula.

Also presented to the University and received by former Chancellor John S. Galbraith for the library, was a set of the 1968 Encyclopaedia Britannica and a set of the Great Books of the Western World.

Robert S. Forrest Jr., assistant to the vice president of Encyclopaedia Britannica, and B. L. Samons, San Diego division manager, presented the volumes to commemorate the 200th anniversary of Encyclopaedia Britannica and the recently-begun construction of UCSD's new Central University Library.

The three-volume replica set of the original Britannica contained three million words, as compared with the 24-volume, 36 million-word current edition. The first edition of Britannica was published in Edinburgh, Scotland.

The first editors devoted almost one-third of the 2,689 pages in the original Britannica to scientific subjects. Of its 44 major articles, or "treatises," almost half were scientific or practical in nature. The article on surgery was the longest, covering 238 pages.

The late 18th century was a "do-it-yourself" era. For example, the practical subject of midwifery, Britannica was as precise as a cookbook.

It included illustrations that were graphic enough to enable the reader to assist in a delivery on short notice. Today's editors still include "midwifery" but have cut it to five paragraphs.

"Farriery," the forerunner of veterinarian medicine, ran 39 pages. Encyclopaedists in the late 18th century were not averse to editorializing, as evidenced by the first sentence in this article: "Farriery," they announced editorializing, is "the art of curing the diseases of horses."

The practice of this useful art has been hitherto almost entirely confined to a set of men who are totally ignorant of anatomy. It is not therefore surprising, that their prescriptions should be equally absurd as the reasons they give for administering them.

The research and production of the replica of the original Britannica took three years at a printing, paper and binding cost amounting to about twice that for each volume of the current set. Pages of the original edition were photographically reproduced and printed on special paper in two colors to simulate the "aged" character of the original. The binding of the replica edition is made of reconstituted leather antiqued by a special technique.

The replica set will be placed in the Humanities section of the Library.

Collectors Invite Public To Billion Dollar Display

The U. S. Treasury will have its BILLION DOLLAR DISPLAY at the American Numismatic Association's 77th Anniversary Convention, El Cortez Hotel, Aug. 20-24.

James A. Conlon, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, is sending Everett J. Prescott, chief, Office of Manufacturing, to serve as the Bureau's official representative since Conlon states that the Treasury Department views the convention as a matter of National significance.

Accompanying Prescott will be the bureau's "live" exhibit. This will be an operating hand-itaglio press on which a Bureau craftsman will print currency notes in view of the public attendance.

The demonstration will be supplemented by an oral explanation of the engraving and printing process used in currency production and a display of engravers' tools, engraved dies, etc.

The general public is invited to attend this demonstration at no charge as well as to view the other outstanding exhibits of gold, silver, copper, etc., coins, tokens, and medals representing the best in the world of coin collecting today.

These displays will all be in the Century Room of the El Cortez Convention Center.

The International Room of the Convention Center will have 123 coin dealers and representatives of trade organizations from around the world. This room is also open to the public free of charge.

The public is also invited to the ANA Educational Forum at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 22, in the Cotillion Room of the hotel at no charge. Here they will listen to George Wait of Glen Ridge, N. J. talk on Paper Money Collections; Mort Goodman of Hollywood, Cal, will discuss The Minting Process; and Paul Vincze of London, the foremost medalist, engraver and sculptor in the world today will talk on Zodiac Medals. Two of these talks will be illustrated.

Sixty-four percent of our Interstate Highway System is now open to traffic, reports the National Automobile Club.

There is a branch library or a bookmobile stop near your home. If you want to find your nearest library call 236-5840.

Young Artists Exhibit Works In La Jolla

Two one-man shows by contemporary young artists will go on exhibit this week at La Jolla Museum of Art.

An exhibition of nine paintings by 28-year-old Michael Torlen opened yesterday in the one-man show gallery. A native San Diegan, Torlen is currently employed as an art professor at the University of Georgia. His work will be on view through Sept. 8.

In the Museum's garden gallery, an exhibit of "reductive" sculpture by Joseph Vaughn will open Sunday. The contemporary geometric wall reliefs executed by the 29-year-old artist represent his dedication to the concept of pure form. Vaughan, this year, received a New Talent Purchase Grant from the contemporary art council of the Los Angeles County Museum of Art. His exhibition will continue through Sept. 15.

In the Museum's main galleries, the major exhibit of 85 works by Sheldon Kirby will remain on display until Sept. 1.

La Jolla Museum of Art is open to the public daily except Monday. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., Tuesday through Friday; 12:30 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday; and Wednesdays from 7 to 10 p.m.

Your Holiday Is No Vacation For Working Hearts

That vacation - with - pay gleam in the eye is here again and you'll want to squeeze the most from your free time and money.

But don't do that to your heart, which never gets a vacation, urges the San Diego County Heart Association. An extreme temperature change, such as a plunge into cold water, can effect even the healthy heart.

To help your heart go on working without a layoff, the Heart Association offers these suggestions: Keep your cool—physical and mental. Rest often. Work up gradually to unaccustomed athletic exertions. Drink lots of fluids, but go easy on iced liquids. Eat light, nutritious, digestible foods—fish, fowl, lean meats, fruits and vegetables—that promote better health the year round.

If you're a heart patient, see your doctor before planning your vacation.

AT FORMER PAUL REVERE SCHOOL

Retarded Youth Go To Larger Quarters

Fourteen years ago a new volunteer group known as the San Diego Association for Retarded Children signed a five-year lease with the County for the use of two burned out classroom buildings at the Anthony Home Juvenile Hall in Mission Valley.

To the Association members, mainly parents of retarded children, the two gutted buildings represented the first big step in establishing the county's first day center and training facility for retarded preschool children and young adults. It was the beginning of an ambitious dream to establish a state supported training program for mentally retarded young adults in San Diego County.

The site was ideal. It was "way out" in Mission Valley with only the San Diego Country Club and the Town and Country Hotel as neighbors.

This week the day care center will be closed. The program now known as the Development Center for Handicapped Minors and run by the San Diego Unified School District is moving to newer and larger quarters in the former Paul Revere Elementary School in Linda Vista.

For the members of the Association for Retarded Children the program has come full circle. The move is the answer to their long struggle for an adequate professional training center which they had begun to work for 14 years ago with pot luck dinners and rummage sales.

But in 1954 when no such training was available much less mandatory as it is today, the dream was still a long way off. Before any children could be admitted to classes, the buildings had to be rebuilt and refurnished. They had been burned by the inmates before they were moved to the new Juvenile hall on Kearny Mesa.

To help raise the needed funds, the Association held a Before and After Tea. The "before" portion was described in the social columns in November, 1954, as "one of the most unique teas in San Diego social history. The Mission Beach Junior Woman's Club served tea and dainty pasteries from flower-covered lace in the middle of a rubble-strewned burned out building in Mission Valley."

A year later, in November, 1955, an "after" tea was held to celebrate the completion of the first building. The Association hired a professional director and started classes with 15 youngsters on a two-day-a-week basis.

Members of the Association volunteered their time to aid in the training and staff work. The training center offered kitchen facilities to teach the older girls the basic cooking and homemaking abilities. A large outdoor playground was equipped with the usual swings and slides but also with sets of low step to teach coordination and muscle control.

In 1957 the Association was able to establish a Saturday youth group for teenagers and young adults. When the second building was remodeled, the teenage program moved onto a five-day-a-week schedule.

Meanwhile the Association members were pushing hard for state support for their program. Finally, through the Special Education Program of the city schools, the Unified School District made an application to the state to operate an education center for handicapped minors in San Diego. The application was quickly approved, in large part because it was an on-going program already begun by the Association.

The public school system took over the operation of the program in January, 1966, in the same Mission Valley site and with the same staff that the Association had gathered.

The Development Center will close for about four weeks to make the move to the new Linda Vista site. When the doors open on Sept. 10, the enrollment will be increased from the present 40 to about 60, 6-hour-per-day students, and the professional staff will eventually increase from the present 9 to about 14 members.

According to Milton LeCouteur, Head Teacher at the Center, the Paul Revere School would be the outcome," LeCouteur said. "The physical layout is perfect. There are no steps, it is easily accessible and the rooms are large and bright."

The 150 elementary school pupils who attended Paul Revere last year will be absorbed into the nearby Carson and Linda Vista Elementary Schools.

The program that LeCouteur and his staff have developed is designed to develop, as far as possible, each child's ability in social and personal care and needs. Many of the students have multiple handicaps such as deafness, blindness, or epilepsy in addition to mental retardation.

The students now range in age from three to 13 years. With the move to the new quarters, the program will eventually be expanded to accept students up to the age of 18 or 19, LeCouteur said.

National Award Presented To Bar Association

For the first time in history a bar association received a special Award of Merit from the American Bar Association.

For the fourth consecutive year, the San Diego County Bar Association has won the Award of Merit for its 1968 Law Week program. Jack R. Levitt, president of the San Diego County Bar Association, in receiving the award at the American Bar Association meeting in Philadelphia, said that this national honor is the direct result of the outstanding efforts of William J. O'Connell, chairman of the 1968 Law Week activities, and his committee, and of the interest and cooperation of the media and the public.

The 1965 and 1966 Law Week programs also received this national recognition, and in 1967 the local Bar Association was honored for its successful efforts to secure a separate Federal Court District for San Diego and Imperial Counties.

DC-10 FUSELAGE CONTRACT AWARD—Artist's conception shows portions of the fuselage of the giant McDonnell Douglas DC-10 jet transport to be built by the Convair division of General Dynamics Corporation. The five fuselage sections are a maximum of 20 feet in diameter and are 128 feet long when joined together. First flight of the McDonnell Douglas Advanced Technology DC-10 Tri-Jetliner is scheduled for Fall, 1970. The work will have a value of $500 million by 1975 and will mean adding about 1,000 employees between now and mid-1969.

$500 MILLION CONTRACT

Convair Will Build DC-10 Jet Fuselage

Convair division of General Dynamics has been selected to manufacture a major portion of the fuselage for the new McDonnell Douglas Advanced Technology DC-10 Tri-Jetliner, the two companies announced today.

The work will have a value of approximately $500 million by 1975 and includes design responsibilities as well as production.

In signing the agreement for General Dynamics, Jack L. Bowers, General Dynamics vice president and Convair division general manager, said, "we are happy to join McDonnell Douglas in development of an airplane that will be a mainstay of commercial air travel for many years. We feel that the DC-10 concept is outstanding, and we welcome the opportunity to help develop it."

An estimated 4,000 Convair employes will be assigned to the DC-10 program when production reaches its peak. The Convair division will begin an immediate buildup in its tooling engineering, tool design and planning, and tool making capabilities, adding about 1,000 employes in these areas between now and mid-1969.

Jackson McGowen, vice president of the McDonnell Douglas Corporation and group vice president-aircraft of the Douglas Aircraft component, commented, "we are particularly pleased to obtain the services of Convair for the DC-10, because of its experience in producing large commercial jet transports."

McGowen pointed out that the wide-bodied fuselage to be made by Convair will be one of the outstanding advances in the DC-10 in terms of air passenger comfort and in terms of airport space utilization when the advanced technology aircraft enters airline service in 1971.

Convair will build all of the 179-foot, 8-inch DC-10 fuselage structure except the nose and tail sections. The fuselage, nearly 20 feet in diameter, will be built at Convair's Lindbergh Field plant. The five sections to be produced are 128 feet long when mated together.

The two forward sections and two aft sections will be joined at Convair facilities, prior to shipment to Douglas Aircraft division's Long Beach plant for final assembly.

"This work is especially significant because of its direct impact on the economy of San Diego County," Bowers said. "It is an important step in the continued growth plans of the Convair division."

Delivery of the first complete fuselage package to Douglas Aircraft will be made in late 1969. Convair will complete design work on four of the five sections, and will be responsible for tooling design, manufacture and assembly of all five sections.

The DC-10 is a multi-range jet liner that will accommodate 271 passengers in a typical mixed-class arrangement, and will operate economically over routes from 300 to 3,200 statute miles in length. It can seat well over 300 passengers in all-economy configurations.

Three new high-bypass turbo fan CF6 engines from General Electric will give the DC-10 superior airport and cruising speed performance over today's transports. The engines, more than twice as powerful as those on current four-engine jets, will have 39,500 pounds of thrust. They will enable the DC-10 to take off from airports of 8,000 feet or less, compared to the more than 10,000 feet required for conventional large jets.

American Airlines and United Airlines, first two airlines to order the DC-10 10, have placed orders and options totaling 110 aircraft.

San Diego Sun Newspapers Micro-Filmed For Posterity

Completion of the micro-filming of the San Diego Historical Society's rare collection of San Diego Sun newspapers and the delivery of the micro-film to Junipero Serra Museum Research Library for its use by researchers has been announced by T. Donald Perkins, president of the San Diego Historical Society.

This marks the end of a joint project between the San Diego Public Library and the San Diego Historical Society, in which the Library paid for the microfilming of the Suns in return for receiving a positive copy of the micro-film for use in the Public Library.

Each copy of the film is about four and four tenths miles long. The micro-film includes the San Diego Sun, daily editions, 1881-1939, and the San Diego Sun semi-weekly and later weekly editions, scattered years between 1881-1904. These issues cover the periods from the late 19th Century mining and land booms to the closing years of the Depression in the 1930's. The San Diego Sun began publication in 1881 and ceased publication in 1939.

The micro-filming is considered a blessing to students of history who now will enjoy the convenience of micro-film when perusing the old newspapers. Previously students were forced to make special arrangements to use heavy bound volumes.

Members and staff of the San Diego Historical Society, together with staff members of the San Diego Public Library, inspected every page of newsprint and mended damaged sheets to assure clear reproduction — a job entailing hundreds of hours of work. The project was begun in February of this year.

The project came about as the result of the Public Library having been given a grant by the State of California to improve its resources and having chosen to concentrate on its newspaper collection, securing in turn films of the San Francisco Chronicle, The Los Angeles Times, The San Diego Journal and the San Diego Sun, Miss Clara Breed, City Librarian, explained.

"The San Diego Historical Society owes thanks to Miss Breed, City Librarian, and to Marco Thorne, Assistant City Librarian, for their wonderful spirit of cooperation in helping to microfilm our Sun newspapers," declared Perkins. "Thanks also to all our volunteer workers who helped repair the newspapers for micro-filming."

Heart Research Made Possible By Memorials

Research into the causes and control of heart disease has been made possible by gifts in memory of many San Diego County residents.

J. A. Pinto, Memorial Gifts chairman of the San Diego County Heart Association, said the gifts honor the memory of friends, business associates and relatives. All memorial contributions are designated for research, he added.

Pinto pointed to the artifical valves, transplants and pacemakers as results of research that "Heart" dollars have made possible.

He expressed appreciation to those who memorialize loved ones by offering hope to the living through such contributions. Pinto reported Memorial Gifts totaling $2,652.80 in July.

The fellow who tests his capacity seldom watches the gauge.

First National Bank Fetes 85th Birthday

In August of 1883 San Diego County was a mere speck on the map, a community of 2,637 people dependent upon fishing and whaling for their livelihood.

In that same month the first nationally chartered bank in San Diego was founded, First National Bank of San Diego. And as that bank celebrates its 85th birthday this month, it reviews its history with a proud sense of accomplishment.

Both San Diego County and the bank, now known as Southern California First National Bank, have changed measureably in the past 85 years. San Diego County has grown to become a west coast metropolis of over one million people involved in nearly every pursuit possible.

Southern California First National has changed from a one-branch operation with six customers to a 43-office system and nearly 250,000 customers. The bank presently stands 119th in total deposits among the nation's 14-000-plus commercial banks. As of June 30, Southern California First National had total deposits in excess of $432 million, from the $40,577 originally deposited in the San Diego-based financial institution.

During the time the bank has served San Diego County, it has become known for "firsts" in the banking world.

The same year the bank opened its doors, it became the first bank to finance a fishing fleet in Southern California. Two years later it was the bank which helped finance the first railroad into the "Harbor of the Sun."

In 1902 Southern California First National became the first bank on the Pacific Coast to finance "horseless carriages."

Financing private airplane ownership was another "first" for the bank in 1936. Six years later the bank established the first common trust fund west of the Mississippi as a means of extending trust services to modest-sized estates.

In 1956 the bank took the lead in a progressive field and became the first bank to install automatic data processing in San Diego. And this year Southern California First National has become the first bank in the nation to integrate a management information system with the complete general ledger into third generation computers.

Along with these many achievements the bank has chosen to maintain its personal approach and offer the customer personalized service in every area of bank operations.

Some of these, just to name a few, are real estate loans, personal loans, automobile loans, home improvement loans, commercial loans, escrow service, checking and savings accounts, bank-by-mail, Christmas Club account, travelers services including travelers checks, safe deposit boxes and the many and varied services of the Trust Department.

Although the bank is old in tradition, it constantly is creating new services for its customers.

Just last month Southern California First National introduced the "Uncharge-ables," a no-service charge checking account plan for customers who maintain a minimum balance of $100 in their regular personal checking account. The bank is the first major commercial bank on the west coast to establish this type of service charge schedule.

Surf Scene

By DOUG SMITH
City Surfing Coordinator

San Miguel, an undeveloped, but picturesque little beach with rock projections on either side, was probably one of the most populated beaches anywhere—most certainly in Mexico last weekend when hundreds of surfers from the West Coast gathered for the Baja Club Invitational Surf Meet. An occasional overhead wave set was enough to keep the surfers stoked and the faces of the viewers seldom turned away from the action.

Catching the eyes of the judges was the fine performance by members of the Windansea Surf Club which took first place in the A and B division. Second place in the "A" division went to Malibu Surf Club with Las Olas third. In the "B" division, North Coast was second with UCLA running third, "C" division, Steamer Lane was first with the small but powerful second place White Sands only five points off the pace. Menehune KaKai was third.

With the completition of the Oceanside Men-Women Women 3A/4A contest yesterday, all eyes are now turned toward the Pacific Beach 3A/48 Classic scheduled for Sept. 14-15.

Sept. 7 and 8 are the dates for the Imperial Beach Single A Contest for W.S.A. members.

On August 17-18 the annual Class 2A Championships in Hermosa Beach will take place.

Surfing conditions: Today's high of 5.2 will take place at 12:24 p.m. followed by a low of 1.6 coming at 6:06 p.m. The water temperature is 68 degrees.

For the surfing conditions in the North San Diego County area, call 753-6221.

Weatherman Wins Miramar Golf Crown

By JOHN E. WIRGES
Sentinel Sports Editor

Jim Dill, 25, a weatherman at the Miramar Naval Air Station, ordered sunny and clear days last week for the 11th Naval District Golf Chompionships played at the Miramar course. The weather came through as ordered and Dill went out and won the tournament. He fired a blazing 69 over the 6,540 yard course Thursday to go one under on the final round to end with a two over 282 for the 72 hole tourney.

Bill Hargis, 19, of Miramar's Training Department, took second place, two strokes back. The pair were tied for the lead as late as the 16th hole in the final round when Hargis hurried a six-inch tap-in putt and missed. He lost another stroke to par and Dill with a wide shot on the 18th. He came in with a four day total of 284.

Third place went to defending All-Navy Golf Champion Larry McAtee, also of Miramar Air Station. McAtee shot a final round 71 for a seven over 287 total.

The hottest fight of the tourney was staged by a pair of Pacific Beach residents, Chuck Mohlman of the Fleet Training Unit, Pacific Fleet and Jim Young of the USS Dixie tied at the end of regulation play with 289. The first four finishers of the tourney will enter regional elimination play next week at Admiral Baker Golf Course. The tie by Young and Mohlman had to be decided by a sudden death playoff.

They were even up on the first hole in the tie-breaker but Mohlman found a trap with his tee shot on the second. Young went down the middle of the fairway and was just short in two. He chipped up within 18 inches and looked like a cinch winner when Mohlman attacked the sanded ball with a five iron to fly to the apron of the green, some 30 feet away from the pin. Mohlman settled the issue by canning a 30-foot putt to take undisputed possession of fourth place and the last spot in next week's regional tournament.

City Kids Go Fishing

Special provisions for use of city lakes this summer by organized youth groups from underprivileged areas have been announced by the City Recreation Department as a result of action of the City Lakes Committee, a division of the City Park and Recreation Board. O. W. Todd, Jr. is committee chairman.

Reservations may be made through the Department for use of the Lake Murray Kids' Pond by groups of youngsters up to 15 years of age. The Kids' Pond is normally limited to use by ages 12 and under.

Fishing tackle will aso be available to organized groups upon application to the Department.

Contributions of fishing equipment from the San Diego community have been been made by individuals attending San Diego Padre baseball games in a program organized by Padre announcer and television sportsmaster Al Couppee.

Application for use of the Pond by groups should be made to the Recreation Department at the Balboa Park Administration Building. Information may be obtained by calling City Lakes Director Orville Ball at the Department on 236-5532.

Rockets Train At U. San Diego

The San Diego Rockets will open training camp for their second NBA campaign at 10 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 19, at University of San Diego.

The announcement was made today in a joint statement by Pete Newell, Rockets' general manager, and Phil Woolpert, USD Athletic Director.

We'll conduct two-a-day practices from the (September) 19th through the 26th," said Jack McMahon, Rockets' coach, "and the public is invited to each session."

Strictly Sports

By BOB LEBO

The citizens of San Diego are pretty good people.

A few years ago (six to be exact) when the Chargers were unwanted in Los Angeles, the City of San Diego spent $1.5 million to enlarge Balboa Stadium so that Baron Hilton and his team would have a comfortable home.

It wasn't long before everyone knew that Balboa Stadium wouldn't do for a first class football team, particularly with a new stadium in Anaheim sitting empty during football season.

So the voters of San Diego unanimously endorsed building the $27 million stadium now in use in Mission Valley knowing full well that n order to break even a Major League baseball franchise would have to be acquired.

It was common knowledge that financier C. Arnholt Smith was interested in getting a team in the National League and this he was able to do with the fine organization he heads plus the addition of E. J. 'Buzzy' Bavasi, who had years of experience with the Dodgers in both Brooklyn and Los Angeles.

Now San Diego has a Major League football team in the Chargers, a Major League baseball team in the Padres and a Major League stadium. But there are problems. The football people hold a contract that is said to be the best in professional ranks and they don't want to give up what they have which is priority to all weekend playing dates during the months of August and September.

The Padres, naturally, will have overlapping dates during these two months and are asking for four priority dates leaving five for the Chargers. The city says there is equal priority for both clubs but will not be tied down to a definition of what is meant by equal priority.

Amicable Relations

In 26 cities in the United States professional football and baseball share stadiums and seem to do it amicably. There is no reason why the Padres and Chargers should not have the same relationship.

Right now the Chargers have a contract that they feel either should be honored or a compensation made with $2 million rumored as the reimbursement. That seems like a high figure when it is considered what the city has already spent to make things comfy for the football team.

Gene Klein and Sam Schulman, the movie magnates who paid $10 million for the Chargers, have a big investment and they weren't in on the original negotiations.

From here it appears that the city blundered in granting all the concession it did to the Chargers, but then Anaheim was in the wings. Now there are those who say the Charger owners would like to take the team to Seattle where they have ownership of the Sonics in the NBA.

But in Seattle they would probably have less of a hand to play than here where they have a contract. Seattle doesn't yet have a fit stadium for either football or baseball and all the money isn't in yet to build the new domed stadium that is planned. Even then, baseball will probably get priority in the Northwest city.

I doubt that the Chargers are seriously interested in moving out of San Diego because of the investment and the potential here is too great.

Impasse Reached

Up to this time the Padres and Chargers have been unable to get together on a definite agreement. The city, which has been negotiating with both clubs, seems to have reached an impasse.

The people have a $27.5 investment with sizeable interest payments to be made. And the stadium is a good one. All anyone has to do is go to Anaheim or Oakland and it is obvious how much superior the facilities are here in San Diego in comparing multiple purpose stadiums.

There is plenty of room in San Diego Stadium for both the Padres and Chargers and it is time that what is good for San Diego takes the forefront in thinking when the contracts are signed.

Actually, the Padres are the easy ones to satisfy. They want four dates while giving five for football so the probles is a basic one. The city must renegotiate with Klein and Schulman, if they are agreeable.

I feel that both the Padres and Chargers will be playing in San Diego Stadium for a long time, but somebody will have to bend a wee bit and it looks like it will be the city.

JUST WED—Judith Carolyn Lank, became the bride of Stanley John Boyer Aug. 3 at Point Loma Community Church. She is the daughter of Cmdr. Harold C. Lank, USN ret., and Mrs. Lank of Point Loma.

Summer Devotions Set for Episcopalians

The Rev. John R. Portman, S.T.D., recently appointed by Bishop Furey as Chairman of the Diocesan Ecumenical Commission of the Roman Catholic Diocese of San Diego, will give the meditations at the Summer Day of Devotion for Episcopal Churchwomen and their friends in the San Diego area, Aug. 20, at St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Del Mar.

The Rev. Matthew A. Curry, rector of St. Peter's Church, will celebrate Holy Communion at 9:30 a.m. and give the blessing at 2 p.m.

The Summer Day of Devotion is one of two quiet days sponsored annually by the Episcopal Churchwomen of the San Diego Convocation. Mrs. Hamer Pemberton, president of the Women of St. Peter's, Del Mar, and other women of the parish are completing plans to welcome those who will attend.

Father Portman was born in Wisconsin and ordained a priest in 1957 in Rome. After serving as Administrator of Blessed Sacrament Church in San Diego from 1957 to 1963, he returned to Rome for two years to complete a Doctorate.

His thesis was "The Emergence of the Concepts of Mission and Unity in the Official Documents of the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches from its Inception until New Delhi 1961."

He was a member of the faculty of Immaculate Heart Seminary at the University of San Diego from 1965 to 1968, the last two years as vice rector, before his recent appointment by Bishop Furey.

Father Portman was invited by the Episcopal Churchwomen to conduct their summer quiet day in response to a request of the Rt. Rev. Francis Eric Bloy, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Los Angeles, to cultivate ecumenical relationships wherever possible.

Bishop Bloy recently appointed the Rev. Paul G. Satrang, Rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church in San Diego, as Canon to the Ordinary for Ecumenical Studies and Conversations. Canon Satrang commends the efforts of the Episcopal Churchwomen in planning this Day of Devotion.

The Rev. Charles L. Conder, Dean of the San Diego Convocation, urges members of the 32 Episcopal congregations in San Diego and Imperial counties to participate in this event.

Town Talk

By MARY FISHEL

DEL MAR TURF CLUB . . . has a slogan . . . where no one is in a hurry — but the horses" . . . very true, except the models at the three special Del Mar Charity Fashion Show days, when cocktails begin at noon followed by lunch and the latest in high fashion appears on the Paddock Terrace . . . before post time at 2 p.m. Guest models and professional alike dash around changing clothes, while Edith Antelline Russell is busy as commentator. The professional models continue the parade informally throughout the Turf Club until 3:30 p.m. All proceeds above and beyond actual operating costs, on these three special days, go to the sponsoring groups through Del Mar Charities, Inc. This includes proceeds from all concessions too, such as food, beverage and parking.

The FIRST will be held tomorrow by San Diego Junior League . . . the SECOND Social Service Auxiliary on Aug. 27 and THIRD Las Patronas on Sept. 5. Mrs. George Gentry of La Jolla is chairman of Junior League Day at the Races tomorrow. She is being assisted by Mrs. Phillip Gildred of Point Loma.

Edith will be assisted by Mrs. Bert Lembeck of Mission Beach. Junior League members who will model include Mmes. Marilyn S. Beard, John E. Benson, James E. Brown, Nicholas Frazee, Lowell North, William T. Stephens, Jr., James I. Robinson, Jerome D. Ryan, John M. Thornton and Miss Diana Justice.

Mrs. John W. O'Neill will be chairman for the Social Service Auxiliary Day and Mrs. Tom M. Mowry, chairman for Las Patronas.

Well as we said . . . before the horses start racing . . . the gals will be running ahead!

SPEAKING ABOUT . . . active women . . . Mrs. Quentin P. Garman of Pacific Beach (he is pastor of Christ Lutheran) and Mrs. Emory Erlander of Kearny Mesa (he is pastor of Gethsemane Lutheran) will be rushing about this week in Chicago with 376 delegates to the third triennial convention of Lutheran Church Women, the official woman's auxiliary of the Lutheran Church in America.

There will be delegates from the United States, Canada, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, according to Mrs. Edmund G. Price of Pittsburgh, Penna., president of the auxiliary. These women will help map plans for the 277,000 member organization for the next three years. Mrs. Price will conclude six years of leading the organization when she presides this week.

"Chosen for Life Together" will be the convention theme. Speakers developing aspects of this exploration into the building of community today include leaders with experience in government, international affairs, education and communications as well as religion.

Dr. Robert J. Marshall will be introduced as the new president of the Lutheran Church in America. He is replacing the late Dr. Franklin Clark Fry. Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, a Lutheran layman, will be one of many outstanding speakers. His topic will be "It's Your Revolution Too."

NOSES OUT OF JOINT? . . . a few hundred ladies were just a little bit confused, after planning to hold a party on the Bahia Belle and at the Bahia Saturday night, when they were called and told they would have to change their plans.

Presidential candidate Richard Nixon was coming to town and needed 150 rooms in two Mission Bay Motels.

Oh well, they were allowed to have their cocktails aboard the Bahia Belle—but had to change their dinner plans and hold it in the Kon Tiki Room at the Catamaran!

EVER HEAR . . . of Dekapentavgouston"? Well it is the first 15 days of August on the calendar of the Greek Orthodox calendar. It is a time of feasting and spiritual discipline for the Orthodox faithful.

The "Repose" or literally the sleep of the Theotokos will be observed Thursday, according to Mrs. Luke Michas of Clairemont. The teaching of the bodily ascension of the Theotokos into heaven is not dogma of the Church and thus is not a mandatory belief to be accepted by Orthodox Christians.

Two State Awards Given

Ramon F. Moreno Post and Auxiliary 1780 to the Veterans of Foreign Wars held their annual picnic recently at the home of Mrs. James Robbins, president, in La Jolla.

Mrs. Edward Bell of Pacific Beach was the chairman for the event. Mrs. Glen Steepleton of Clairemont received a state award for outstanding work she has done for Americanism.

Mrs. Buford L. Maples of University City also received a state award for outstanding hospital work she has done for the auxiliary.

Volkswagen's automatic stick shift. It's easier to use than it is to say.

It's quite a mouthful, isn't it?
But once you get by the name, the rest is easy.
There isn't a clutch pedal to contend with.
And for all practical purposes, you can drive everywhere without shifting.
On the highway, you shift once. (This is like an overdrive: you go faster, your engine goes slower, and your automatic bug won't turn into an automatic hog.)
And when the going gets rough (like up a ridiculously steep hill), you can shift into low.
What could be simpler?
One thing: the automatic stick shift is an option.
So you'll have to pay a little more.
But compared to other automatics, it's a bargain.
Because with every automatic stick shift, we include a remarkable money-saving device:
A Volkswagen.

CRAM COURSE—Professor Steve Fuller, Dean of Harvard Graduate School of Business, listens while Dan McKinno (right) president of Radio Stations KSON and KSEA in San Diego, asks a question. McKinnon was one of a group of broadcasters selected by the National Association of Broadcasters to attend a two-week cram course on business management at Harvard University in Cambridge this summer.

Picnic At Rec Center

Family Reunion Day Sponsored By Kiwanis

The Clairemont Hills Kiwanis Club will honor President Johnson's proclamation naming today as Family Reunion Day by sponsoring a picnic at the South Clairemont Recreation Center.

The picnic will be held at 1 p.m. at the recreation center, and will include games and sports. All Kiwanis families are being invited to attend. Clair Martin, Kiwanis president, is coordinating the picnic.

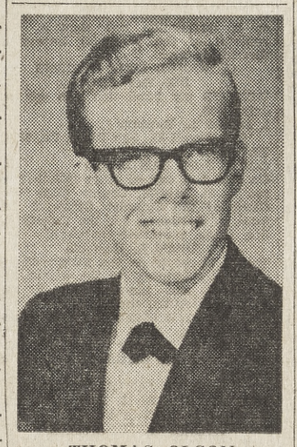
The resolution authorizing legislation naming Aug. 11 as Family Reunion Day in the United States was sponsored by 39 members of Congress and was signed by President Johnson and witnessed by the two past governors of Kiwanis International.

Family Reunion Day is being co-sponsored by the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge in an effort to promote family togetherness.

In his proclamation, the President said "poverty, discrimination and the spiritual deprivation of slum life have strained the cohesion of family units past the breaking point. Many young people are growing up without the shaping example of a firm, responsible and caring male in the household.

"Action to extend job opportunities, to improve education and housing, and to end discrimination in all its forms is vital to stronger family life, and ultimately to a more just and peaceful nation.

"I urge all the people of the United States to support those actions that will strengthen the American family, and to celebrate this day with such ceremonies as will re-emphasize our continuing belief that family life is the highest and most enduring product of our civilization."



THOMAS OLSON

Olson To Begin College Aboard Floating Campus

Thomas Olson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow W. Perry of 4024 Alicia Dr., has been accepted for enrollment in the 1968 fall semester at sea aboard World Campus Afloat-Chapman College.

Olson will board the S. S. Ryndam Oct. 10 in New York to begin the 110-day study voyage to ports in South America, Africa and Europe. Students carry a regular semester's units on the shipboard campus, drawing from a liberal arts curriculum parallel to that offered on most land-based campuses.

Olson is a graduate of Point Loma High's 1968 class.

Science Church Announces Talk By Leith Loder

The Ernest Holmes Church of Religious Science, 115 Thorn Street, will have as guest speaker today, H. Leith Loder, writer, lecturer and public relations specialist as well as a licensed practitioner of Religious Science.

Locally, Mr. Loder was for four years public relations director for United Community Services of San Diego County and for three years executive director of the San Diego Downtown Association.

His topic at the 11 o'clock service will be "The Nuclear You." Dr. Craig Carter, minister of the church, will be conducting a daily healing mission for his denomination's annual summer conference at Camp Asilomar near Monterey, California during the week of August 11 to 17.

Mr. Loder and his wife live at 4102 Loma Riviera Lane in Point Loma.

Youth Gets Probation On Dope Charge

A 19-year-old Clairemont youth was placed on three years probation Thursday on a charge of possessing marijuana after he surrendered to the sheriff's office last month.

The youth, William Eugene Reedy Jr., of 2816 Havasupai Ave., was also ordered to pay a $250 fine by Superior Court Judge James C. Toothaker.

Probation authorities said Reedy surrendered to the sheriff's office July 3, handing officers some dangerous pills and marijuana. The probation report said Reedy admitted to having purchased the drugs at a love-in in a park.

Reedy was quoted as saying that he feared he would become addicted to the drugs, He had been charged earlier, and pleaded guilty, to maintaing a place for the unlawful use of narcotics.

The possession of marijuana charge was ruled a misdemeanor by Toothaker.

Women Train For Careers In Dentistry

The desire to switch from the welfare rolls to a payroll is motivating six San Diego women who are receiving free training as dental technicians at the Naval Training Center here.

"NTC's dental department, under the supervision of Captain Harold G. Green, is conducting the training in cooperation with the County of San Diego Department of Public Welfare," stated Leo Pierson, who is supervising the project for the Welfare Department.

The program is designed to get these women off relief and into good jobs as dentists' assistants. They are given extensive, practical, on-the-job training with professional dental technicians as well as with the dentists themselves.

A week of indoctrination classes, which began on April 1, preceded the period of actual instruction. The six students were introduced to dental materials, terminology, and maintenance of equipment. They then were assigned to the various dental clinics on the Center for their practical training and experience.

The training period will last from nine to 12 months. Meanwhile, welfare funds provide for child care and transportation as these ambitious mothers strive to become self-supporting.

Peace Corps Placement Test Date Announced

Area residents interested in putting their skills to use in developing nations around the world are invited to take the Peace Corps Placement Test at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 17 in Room 302, 601 A St., downtown.

The Peace Corps uses the Placement Test to determine how an applicant can best be utilized overseas. The test measures general aptitude and the ability to learn a language, not education or achievement. The test requires no preparation and is non-competitive; an applicant can neither pass nor fail.

Persons interested in serving with the Peace Corps must fill out an application, if they have not already done so, and present it to the tester before the test. Application forms are available from post offices or from the Peace Corps in Washington, D. C. 20525.

Twelve thousand volunteers are currently serving in Asia, Africa, Latin America and the Pacific Islands, working with the people of those nations in self-help projects ranging from food production to health to education. More volunteers are needed for programs which will begin this fall and winter.

If you have a heart condition—and several thousands of San Diego County residents do—your Heart Association recommends a talk with your doctor before your vacation trip.
